Deployment

There is very little deployment. The idea is to have a page load that encourages people to sign up for a cause they can get behind. If they do not pay attention to the warning signs of a phishing site. They will be informed that they fell for a phishing attack and either receive some information on how to avoid it or their IT department will be notified. There is a flag in the processing.php file to replace configuration.php since the only things that would show up there is the page that would be loaded and if it is going to the email they enter or the IT department. Usage is for red team tactics to do a blue team job.

Due to liability issues that could come up with this application, it is recommended to set it up on a local website or in a network so the person deploying does not let it free in the wild and cause privy and possibly legal issues.

VCS: Github

The repo organization is fairly straightforward. Everything in the repo is either part of the project or related to a milestone and nothing is broke into folders.
